7. CLASSES. Students are expected to complete reading assignments before class, to take notes during the class, and to participate in classroom discussions. Most class periods will be devoted to a combination of lectures, student readings and discussions, small learning group activities, and audiovisual presentations. Students are responsible for all information covered in class, as well as reading assignments.

8. GRADED REQUIREMENTS.

a. Periodic Tests. Chapter tests will be given approximately once a week, depending on the length and content of the chapter. Tests will normally consist of a combination of matching, multiple choice, true/false, and short essay questions. Students will normally be provided with essay prompts before a test in order to produce a finished product during a test.

b. Quizzes. Announced and unannounced quizzes will be administered periodically.

c. Focus Activities. A focus activity will be provided at the beginning of each period. The focus activity may involve material previously covered, or to introduce new material. The focus activity will involve copying questions and answers from whiteboard or smartboard transparency, analyzing and evaluating informational material read from the text or another written source, and correctly answering the questions. Focus activities are formatted along the lines of End of Grade Test formats.

d. Class Work/Homework. Each student is expected to complete assigned class work as directed and to participate in daily class activities. Work not completed in class will be completed at home. Daily class activities include oral readings in class, classroom discussions and reviews, and specific assignments, such as activity work sheets or group assignments.

e. Special Assignments. Periodically, special assignments, such as book reports, biographies, ABC Reports, National History Day projects, and other assignments will be given. Specific written guidelines will be provided for each assignment.

9. NOTEBOOKS. Each student is encouraged to maintain a social studies notebook consisting of a loose leaf notebook with five tabbed dividers marked in order as follows: focus activity; assignment sheet; class work/homework; tests/quizzes, and vocabulary.

16. EXPECTATIONS. Remember what we are here for - to study North Carolina and United States history - this is the primary reason for our daily meeting that is less than an hour in length. Additionally, it is my intent to use this period to reinforce your communications skills with an emphasis on analyzing and evaluating informational material that is read, heard or viewed, as well as writing well-developed papers. My job is to teach the material, and hopefully, arouse your interest in an old discipline that seems overshadowed by the focus on technical skills. Your job is to learn the material, and hopefully, develop an interest in the matters at hand. It is much better for both of us when the interest is mutual. I can not “make’ you learn. I look forward to an exciting year.

15. Communication. Regular communication between parent and teacher can ensure clear understanding of assignments and expectations. Parents are encouraged to sign up for Remind (an educational texting program). Students can also sign up for Remind and will be expected to log into Google Classroom for NC History. Parents who do not wish to use Remind should email the teacher at donsanchez@ccs.k12.nc.us to receive an invite to Google Classroom.

Use the following chart to sign up for Remind based on the period your student has NC History.

Sincerely,
Don Diego Sanchez

I agree to pick my child up by 4:30 pm.

Students will be given the opportunity to receive a permission slip form each week, and they are required to have this form returned to me by 8:30 a.m. on the day of tutoring if they wish to participate. This will give me time to plan, gather resources, and prepare appropriate materials to better assist your child.

Please arrive on time to pick up your child. Students will be located at the front entrance of the school for dismissal. If your child needs to walk home from school upon completion of tutoring, you will need to write a note on the bottom of this form giving him/her permission. Late pick-ups will be documented. Your child will not be allowed to partake in my tutorial program if there are two recordings of documentation.

Behavior is another area in which your child may be penalized. The rules and guidelines set forth by Reid Ross Classical School will still be in effect. Please review these with your child at your earliest convenience. Again, two documented incidences will result in a student being exited from my tutorial program.

Students should bring with them the recommended schools supplies, as listed in the Aristotle's Team Handbook (available on RRCS website), for Communication Skills/Reading.
